This isn't a very lucid explanation of why and how the Griffmen won the first game from the invading Tars Indeed, trying to find a lucid method of expression has brought us along this far. As in any ball game there were sundry hits and outs and other things known to the fans mixed up. Nothing was lacking

New York. July II.—Although neither the American nor the National League pennant is the personal property of any team as yet, Han Johnson and other members of the national commission are beginning to plan for the world's series of 1913. The American League president during his recent visit here said:

"While the Athletics now have a big lead, nothing is certain in baseball. I notice that Mack still is seeking pitchers, so I'm safe in saying he is not ready to sit back and wait for the National League winner's onslaught. Cleveland, Washington and Chicago are very much in the race."

President Johnson stated that in case the Athletics and Giants did win their respective league championships, the world's series will be played on alternate days in New York and Philadelphia. Should the winning teams be separated by a greater distance of travel than these two cities, then the series would be played two games at home and two abroad.

Relative to tie games, he said that in future the world's series schedule would be adhered to, and the tie game played on the next return to the city in which it occurred. He further stated that hereafter all umpires in the world's series would receive $1.00 each for their work, in accordance with the policy established after the close of the 1912 play.

According to Johnson, interest in the world's championship series has already started. Applications for series seats aiready are being received from many State and foreign countries. One letter was from five Americans now living in Chile, who wrote they were planning to spend their vacation as speciators at the world's series providing they could be assured of securing seats.

Challenges Pollard to Meet Him in Williams's Home District.

S. Gordon Cumming, candidate for Attorney-General of Virginia, chal-lenged John Garland Pollard, of Henrico County, last night to a joint de-bate to be held in Roanoke or at any other point in the Ninth Congressional District to be selected by Mr. Pollard. The Ninth District, the home section of Attorney-General Samuel W. Williams, is now being invaded by Mr. Pollard, and a debate between his opponents would attract a large gathering at almost any point.

Mr. Cumming sent the following telegram to Mr. Pollard last night: Hon. John Garland Pollard, Candidate for Attorney-General: Roanoke, Va. (Please forward). To-day's Nows Leader account from its representative accompanying you suggests a rumor of our having a joint debate. If compatible with your plans, I invite you to a joint discussion at Roanoke or any place you so lect in the Ninth District, any day next week after Monday, details to be determined by you. A local theatre manager had distributed thousands of free tickets throughout the Southside, but despite the fact that the playhouse was jammed, the majority of the people managed to take in both attractions, and if anything, the audience at the park was larger than that of the opening night. Candidates for State office will be heard before the South Richmond Democratic Club, which meets to-night at its quarters in Lafayette Hall. Secretary R. P. Shiflett has received several acceptances, but a number of prospective officeholders will be unable to appear because or previous engagements.
